Robert E. Linkin is a partner in the firm's complex litigation/dispute resolution group. Rob represents clients in complex litigation, securities litigation, and class action lawsuits. He brings nearly 30 years of legal experience advising clients in business disputes, financial reporting, and commercial litigation.

Rob is well known in the legal industry as an accomplished litigator and class action attorney with both defense and plaintiff skills in the courtroom. He frequently serves as first chair trial attorney in multi-million-dollar cases and has an established reputation for developing and executing successful litigation strategies. He has also handled numerous class actions both for Plaintiffs and Defendants.

In addition to his complex litigation and class action work, Rob represents clients in investor claims, investment fraud, and stockbroker misconduct. He handles FINRA and AAA securities arbitration matters, and he is a consultant to publicly traded corporations on consumer protection matters, fiduciary matters, anti-trust matters, fraud claims, and complex state and federal securities matters.

Rob has developed a niche practice in entertainment law, representing independent labels and recordings artists in Austin. This practice area experience blends perfectly with MWM's established entertainment practice headed by two partners in the LA office and now gives the firm great market position in two of the nation's top entertainment cities. Rob is a member of the State Bar of Texas and received his J.D. from the Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law at Yeshiva University.

Experience

- In Burnett v. National Association of Realtors, No. 19-CV-00332 (W.D. Mo. 2024)(Opinion) (and multiple related cases), Rob served as co-lead defense counsel for one of the real estate brokerages in a series of nationwide class action cases challenging NAR's policy on commission sharing. David and team negotiated a favorable settlement that was approved over multiple objections. [Insert Link to Order] In O'Shaughnessy v. Young Living Essential Oils, No. 2:20-CV-00470 (D. Utah 2024), Rob is co-lead plaintiff's counsel in a putative class action seeking to recover hundreds of millions of dollars against Young Living Essential Oils based on allegations that Young Living is running a pyramid scheme. Rob co-authored the briefing and/or presented oral argument that persuaded the trial Court to deny a series of defensive Motions, including Defendant's Motion to Compel Arbitration (Order), Defendant's Motion to Dismiss, and Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment. Rob was also lead counsel before the Fifth Circuit, which affirmed denial of the Motion to Compel Arbitration.
- In *Matson v.
